Bay Region To Make Stand For Air Base Site

Northern California Aids Sunnyvale Boosters

The San Francisco bay area will put up a united stand at Washington to secure the $5,000,000 naval dirigible site for Sunnyvale. The San Francisco bay region congressional delegation is preparing a united drive to accomplish this purpose.

In a letter to Dr. W. H. Walker, president of the Willows Chamber of Comerce, Congressman Clarence F. Lea of the first district reiterated his intention to support the campaign and stated that "all of us here from the bay area have agreed to lend every effort to secure the site on the bay to be recommended by the committee of naval experts who have been investigating the matter."

A copy of the letter was received Tuesday by the San Francisco junior chamber, which is leading the fight to gain the project for the bay region.

The Sunnyvale site is also being assisted in its fight for the air base by the efforts of the San Francisco Bay Industrial Development Association.

Menlo Park J. C. Will Meet Marin

By DRURY SAUNDERS

Menlo Junior College, even though it has been defeated by San Mateo Junior College, still has a chance to tie for second place in the junior college conference when the Menlo boys play Marin Juniors this Saturday at Menlo.

In the course of the season both teams have played the same opponents. San Mateo defeated Menlo and Marin by the same score. These two teams have also defeated Oregon State Normal by approximately the same score.

Menlo will be at a disadvantage this week because two of its stars are out with injuries. Gordon Campbell, flashy halfback, is reported out of the game, due to wrenched shoulder. He will be out of the lineup for the next two weeks. Captain Jay Tod, one of Menlo's star ends is also out with a bum shoulder. All the men on the Marin team are reported to be in fine shape.

The Marin boys have a strong passing attack, and combined with a strong line they expect to win the game and retain their second place in the conference standing. Menlo has a noticeably weak defense against passing, as shown by the way San Mateo's passes worked last Friday. If this defense can be bolstered the game this week looks like a toss-up as to who will win.

Standing of the Conference Teams

| Team | Won | Lost |
|---|---|---|
| San Mateo | 2 | 0 |
| Marin | 2 | 1 |
| Menlo | 1 | 1 |
| Calif. Poly | 1 | 1 |
| Modesto | 1 | 1 |

Sacramento—No games played as yet
Santa Rosa—Forfeited all games.

Associated Sportsmen Meet In S. F.

San Mateo Man Is Chosen Vice-President

By J. H. NEUSTADT

The annual convention of the Associated Sportsmen of California was held at the Whitcomb Hotel, San Francisco, on the 25 and 26 of October, and was the most unanimous and constructive gathering ever held by this organization.

Delegates from 127 clubs forming the Association of Sportsmen were present and represented territory from the Oregon boundary to San Diego.

A signal honor was paid San Mateo county by the election of J. H. Neustadt as vice-president.

The state-wide importance of this organization and recognized value was demonstrated by the attendance of Eugene Bennett, attorney of the commission, Major Farley, the chief executive officer of the commission, E. L. Macauley, chief of the state patrol and other commission officers all of whom heartily endorsed the good work of the association.

The convention ended with a banquet presided over by Albert Lindley, the well-known toastmaster, and was a unanimous and pronounced success.

Speches were made by Fred G. Stevenot, representative of the Governor, Senator Sanborn Young, J. Zellerbach and others of note and all announced their devotion to conservation of the state's wild life.

The United States government was represented by George Tonkin, game protector and L. A. Barret, assistant chief of the forestry service.

Gale Drives Boat On Mud Near Bridge

The U. S. Cutter CG-262 and the motor boat Edith May both landed on the mud flats near the Dumbarton bridge as the result of the high wind which swept over the bay Monday afternoon. The motor boat was driven onto the mud by the high wind. The cutter in attempting to reach the Edith May to assist that boat in freeing herself from the mud, also went aground and became fast in the mud. The two boats were able to free themselves of the mud Tuesday afternoon.

The high winds are also believed to have been the cause of the death of at least one man on the lower bay. Michael Porovich had a boat tied up on the shore at San Mateo. When the wind tore it loose he borrowed another boat to go in search of it. He did not return and his friends becoming anxious, went in search of him. He was not found.

Two men, said to have been in search of Porovich, were found by the coast guard by an overturned boat in a state of exhaustion. They were rescued by the guards.

C. Saunders To Open Stores On Peninsula

Event To Be Featured With Music and Entertainment

Redwood City will be one of five peninsula cities in which a Clarence Saunders Store will be opened tomorrow, Saturday, November 2. The Saunders chain store company has leased a large location at 2623 Broadway, and after making alterations which have amounted to a complete refinishing and refurnishing of two stores, which have been combined into one, are now ready to begin business.

Clarance Saunders

The other cities where Saunders stores are to be opened simultaneously with the one in Redwood City are Palo Alto, at 322 University avenue; San Mateo at 221 Third avenue; Burlingame, at 1326 Burlingame avenue; and at Broadway Station, Burlingame, 1241 Broadway.

An elaborate program of music and entertainment is being arranged at each of the five new stores. A five-piece orchestra will be present all day at each of the stores to furnish music and entertainment. At the store here arrangements have been made to have Art Weidner's five-piece orchestra famous for its radio programs, present.

The Saunders chain of stores already maintain 600 stores in 23 states. Fifty stores are now operating in the east bay region. The chain represents one of the largest achievements in chain store merchandising in America.

The local store is being opened under the supervision of Charles Crouch, district manager for the Saunders Company. J. H. Baker is manager for the peninsula region, while Benny Benedetti is in charge of the meat markets of stores in this district. The manager of the Redwood City store will be Walter Noble, of this city.

The Saunders arrangement of stores is slightly different from that used in other chain stores. Among the unique features of this store is a method employed to keep vegetables fresh while on the shelf. The vegetables are continually cooled and moistened by a cool mist which is sprayed over them.

All Saunders meat markets are mechanically refrigerated, and only the best grades of meat are carried.

The Redwood City store will open for business at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and remain open until 9 o'clock in the evening of that day. Thereafter the store will maintain the same hours as other food stores of this city.

Road Hearing Completed In Spur Contest

S. P. and Highway Board To File Briefs In Case

The contest of the California Board of Public Works and the Southern Pacific which has been occuping the attention of the State Railroad Commission for some weeks will be submitted on briefs by the attorneys of the railroad company and those of the state. The contest arose out of the building by the railroad company of a spur track, at present unconnected with any line track, across the proposed right of way of the extension of the Bayshore road from San Mateo to Redwood City.

At a hearing before Railroad Commissioner Decoto held in San Francisco on Tuesday, both sides were given an opportunity to express their views. Another party which has been interested in the controversy is the Western Pacific Railroad Company, whose proposed peninsula line would also be intersected by the "orphan" spur of the Southern Pacific.

At the hearing before the commission on Tuesday, W. H. Kirkbride, maintenance of way engineer for the Southern Pacific stated that a grade separation as demanded by the highway officials would be unnecessary at this point. Kirkbride gave as his reasons for this stand the following:

The bulk of the switching would be done between midnight and 6 o'clock a. m.

No switching would be done on Sundays and holidays.

Flood lights and signals would be installed.

Train crews would exercise great caution, sending a flagman ahead of all moving trains.

The hearing held on the protest of the State Highway Commission against the grade crossing, brought the Western Pacific Railroad into the case, and J. W. Williams, chief engineer, appeared. He testified to the Western Pacific's pending application for permission to build a line from San Francisco to Niles via Redwood City.

"There are 10,800 acres of industrial lands lying east of the Bayshore Highway, and the proposed Western Pacific line adequately will serve the needs of all industries to be established," said Williams.

At the conclusion of the hearing the commissioner requested both parties to file briefs showing their rights to priority. If the highway commission can prove that its surveys were made prior to those of the Southern Pacific Company, the latter concern will have to pay the larger share of a grade separation, if a separation is ordered by the railroad commission.

Crescent City Hotel Company, Ltd., capitalized at $500,000, has been authorized by the State Corporation Commissioner to sell 25,000 shares of common capital stock to the public at par, $10 a share.

Test of the constitutionality of the new State dam inspection law is expected in a suit filed against the city of Stockton by Bent Bros., Inc., Los Angeles contractors, in the Third District Court of Appeals, asking $70,724.27.

Profits of Santa Monica's municipal bus department during the last fiscal year are shown to be about $25,000 out of $171,452.31 total revenues. The average fare was 9 12-17 cents, nearly 10 cents flat.

C. G. Hough claims the bicycle riding championship for Visalia. He has used the same bicycle for twenty years and estimates it has carried him 25,000 miles.

Contracts which were under engineer's estimates on this year's Yuba County road building program netted a $14,000 surplus. The county board mapped new construction on foothill roads, made possible by these contract economies.

Visalia property owners freely asked questions and then laughed at their ignorance as the result of tax statements they got calling for payments of from 3 cents to $2 for the "Visalia Levee District." Even old-timers had forgotten such a district existed and newcomers knew nothing about it, but all are paying the tax, now that they know what it is for. Years ago the district was created to keep river beds cleaned out and levees in repair to prevent floods. No funds were needed for years, however, and no tax was levied. This year $3,000 is needed, wherefore the "tax statement."

Bids, thirteen in all, submitted to the Stanislaus County Board of Supervisors for the construction of a second unit to the county hospital were rejected by the board as being too high and the architect was instructed to prepare new plans. The appropriation for the unit was $80,-000 and the lowest bid was submitted by George Swanstrom of Oakland, it amounting to $94,765. The highest bid was submitted by James M. Bartlett, also of Oakland. His bid was $104,300. Contracts for the building of three concrete bridges were awarded to George Ulrich & Sons, who bid $11,000 for the work.

The Humboldt road, Chico to Chester, may have a scenic outlet from Chico. Announcement is made that a survey for a six-mile extension of the present road up famous Bidwell Park is expected to result in the commencement of construction next year. The present road extends up the canyon to Salt Springs. From there it is planned to extend the road on water level up the canyon, it later to connect with the present Humbodt road. The cost is estimated at $20,-000. The present road extends over low foothills.

The state chamber of commerce anti-billboard campaign is getting results in Tulare County. An active start has been made by the state chamber committee asked to work on clearing the highways into Sequoia and General Grant national parks. This committee, headed by Superintendent John R. White of the national parks, Supervisors LaRue and Pfrimmer, has met with good response from land owners where signs have been erected. They believe both roads will be cleared of all signs from the foothills to the park.

A valuable stamp collection and $2100, comprising the estate of the late J. W. James was formally turned over to the state of California, to which it had been bequeathed, by Superior Judge J. O. Moncur at Oroville.

Scarcity of mountain lions is one reason why deer are so plentiful this year, Jay Bruce, state lion hunter, declared. "There are remarkably few lions in Butte, Yuba, Sutter and Nevada counties," Bruce said. "I should say there are five times more lions in the average lion country than in this area. Lions kill an average of fifty deer a year."

The first marriage in the state under the new law permitting girls 15 years of age to marry, was on record at Santa Barbara. Samuel Haskel Snyder of Mokelumne Hill and Silvie May Veris of Ojai were married in Superior Court in Santa Barbara. The new law became effective August 14.

Shorter Season Favored by Brooklyn Nationals

So far as the individual members of the Brooklyn National league baseball club are concerned, the National league can shorten its season next year without causing any hard feelings. Recently the athletes, most of them eager to get home, laid around almost a week. Their last game was with the Braves at Ebbets field on Sunday. Rain on two successive days finally washed out their final contest with the Giants and kept them idle from one week end to the other.

None of the players got a break. Because Wilbert Robinson got extremely anxious to finish fifth, he carried almost his complete team to Boston for the one day.

After the official season ended most of the Robins scattered to the four corners of the country. A few exceptions were Dazzy Vance and Dave Bancroft, who attended the world series games in Chicago, and Babe Herman, Austin Moore and Billy Rhiel, who played in a few exhibition games around New York.

President Manager Robinson, who hopes to grab a couple of promising players in the draft, also attended the Chicago games of the world series.

of his own death. Jacob Ruppert, commander-in-chief of the Ruppert Rifles, had such great faith in even the slightest suggestion of his diminutive field marshal, that he faithfully followed Huggins' lead in announcing that Robert I. Shawkey would be the next manager of the Yankees.

Tackle Most Important Position on Grid Team

There's material for a thousand arguments in which is the most important position on a football team. The subject has been discussed for years in baseball without being decided and there is no chance that any quicker decision will be reached in football. But, it is quite probable, that if one went to the coaches of 100 of the biggest universities of the country and asked as to this "most valuable" position, a majority would answer the question by saying, "Well, you see that I have two big husky and fast tackles and I'll take care of the rest of the team." Naturally, a good field general comes high in importance but a coach can do a lot of the "general's" thinking for him. Nebraska has the best record of any college against Notre Dame; Nebraska always has a pair of good tackles. Which may or may not prove anything.

Long Fungo Hit

During batting practice at the Yankee stadium Babe Ruth added another long-distance hitting record to his list. Standing near home plate, he aimed a series of fungo flies at the center field bleachers.

Measurement of Babe's longest fungo recorded a distance of 447 feet. The longest drive of this kind to which a tape measure has ever been applied, according to the records, was a fungo knocked 418 feet in 1912 by Pitcher Ed Walsh.

SEEKING SERVICE GAME AT CHICAGO

Congressman Britten Urges Contest for Dec. 6.

Despite reports from West Point that Army could not meet Navy on the gridiron this season because of the heavy schedule, Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago is determined to continue his negotiations to bring about a renewal of the football relations between the service schools.

Mr. Britten planned to confer with President Hoover again and urge upon the commander-in-chief of the army and navy that the traditional contest between the two academies be resumed.

His plan calls for the appointment of a prominent director of athletics in some university to confer with Secretary of War Good and Secretary of Navy Adams to draw up eligibility rules for the schools so that they could play a post-season game December 6 of this year at Chicago.

It seems that one of the most difficult problems of football officiating is detecting the use of the tabooed "screen pass" and its variations. The rules have been made more stringent and clarified on this feature of the aerial game for the 1929 season, but it is understood that the rules-makers were obliged to call in a half dozen of the leading coaches and appeal for co-operation in removing the illegal screen plays.

In effect, the coaches summoned, all famous, replied: "We will be glad to co-operate, scrupulously avoiding any endeavor to circumvent the screen pass rule, if officials will be eagle-eyed in preventing the other fellows from getting away with it. We will play the game the way you want it, providing we have the proper protection."

Tulane university has Billy Banker, the great blond flash, as captain and leader this year. Banker, a Lake Charles, La., boy, gained national recognition last year by being one of the leading point scorers in the country. His play at halfback won for him the unanimous choice for the all-Southern team.

Because the Athletics won the world's series Forrest F. Cole of Dallas, Texas, must knock flies all the way to Shibe park, Philadelphia. Ernest Luttrell, his betting opponent, will accompany him, furnishing a fungo bat and balls. They hope to be in Philadelphia by February 1.

Newspaper men on the Pacific coast blame "internal dissension," that old bugaboo which was the bane of the Pittsburgh Pirates last year, for the defeat and tie which were marked up against the strong Stanford football team last season. On their way east for the Army game, half of Pop Warner's gridders wouldn't speak with the other faction, is the report. But all is mended this year.

Earle Neale played professional baseball and college football at the same time. He was then a student at West Virginia Wesleyan and there was no rule against summer baseball.

The Reading club, a Cub farm, didn't develop any stars for the parent organization this year. Last year Reading sent Harry Seibold, a rejuvenated veteran, to the Cubs and he was traded to the Braves in the deal for Rogers Hornsby.

The only strategy we can suggest in connection with the playing of football at night would be to start a halfback off with the ball and turn off the lights.

The Chicago Cubs suffered some hardships at the hands of the Athletics on the ball field but they could hardly ask for better treatment off the diamond.

A special chef with two assistants cooked for the National league champions during their stay in Philadelphia. They occupied one entire floor of their hotel with a private dining room among the accommodations, a private elevator to carry them to their rooms, and a gymnasium and radio among other comforts of home.

University of California executive committee voted against installing the loud speaker system in the Memorial stadium at Berkeley where the football games are staged.

New Way to Gate

Buzz Arlett, of Oakland, complained recently that he was put out of a game by an umpire without saying a word to him. Buzz likes his hits and was having the close ones called to his disadvantage. He didn't say anything, but glared plenty at the umps. Finally, after what he considered to be a raw one, he turned to Fred Hofmann, the Mission catcher, and said: "Turn around and see the world's worst umpire." Fred turned and Arlett got an early shower.

"OLD SETTIN' HEN" IN LOSING RACE

Incubators on Farm Hatch 24 Per Cent of Chicks.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The fluffy old mother hen continues to lose out in the race with the mechanical substitutes, but she is still on the job, according to the reports sent to the United States Department of Agriculture by the crop correspondents of the bureau of agricultural economics. About 43 per cent of all chickens raised are still hatched under hens, the reports indicate. Incubators on the farm hatch about 24 per cent of the chickens raised, and eggs supplied by farmers and hatched for a fee amount to about 10 per cent. Commerical hatcheries now hatch about 23 per cent of the annual baby chicks crop.

A distinct difference is evident when regional areas are compared. In the South Atlantic states from Virginia to Florida and in the South Central states, the hen holds her own and hatches about two-thirds of the chicks as compared with all others. Rhode Island with only 14 per cent of hen-hatched chicks is the lowest in this respect, and in no other states is the percentage lower than 20. The North Atlantic and the Western states buy the largest proportion of baby chicks, 45 per cent and 41 per cent, respectively. Farm hatching of chicks in incubators is most popular in the North Central states, more than 30 per cent being reported from this source. Missouri and Kansas each with 40 per cent of their chicks hatched in incubators on the farms are high in this group.

Moist Mashes Favored for Keeping Up Weight

Moist mash is a means of keeping up the body weight of the pullets and hens. Noon is the best time to feed the moist mash in the winter. In feeding the moist mash put it in troughs well spread out so that all of the hens can eat readily and don't feed more than they can clean up in from 15 to 25 minutes. Any moist mash remaining in the trough should be removed. In mixing the moist mash use liquid skim milk or buttermilk if available; if not, warm water may be used, or if fresh meat is cooked for the hens, the liquid should be saved and used in making the moist mash. In any case, do not feed a cold moist mash to the flock, as they do not eat it as readily and what they do eat will more or less chill the birds, and by so doing take considerable of their energy to warm them up again, so be sure to have the moist mash warm before feeding.

Low Temperature Very Essential in Storing

When an egg is first laid it contains no air cell. As the contents of the egg cools and evaporation starts, the air cell develops. This air cell continues to grow larger as the egg grows older, due to evaporation of moisture through the porous shell. An egg that is held in a warm room will show a larger air cell because the heat aids in bringing about more rapid evaporation. This makes the air cell a valuable aid in determining the quality of the egg. An egg which is a month old will not show much increase in the size of the air cell, if stored in a cool place; neither will its quality deteriorate greatly if properly stored. This is the reason why a low temperature is essential in storing eggs.

Buying Pullets

Buyers of pullets should know that age is not as important as weight and quality in buying pullets. In a flock of pullets of the same age and breeding, there will be three distinct grades of birds. In buying pullets at a flat rate it pays to weigh at least part of the birds and give them all a health inspection. In selling pullets it pays to know something about their cost of production. There are too many pullets sold for $1 each that cost approximately $1.20 each to produce.

No Best Breed

There is no best breed of chickens for laying or meat. There are a number of breeds that have been bred for egg production and any one of these will make a good record if they are fed and cared for properly. There are strains of Barred Rocks that have been bred for high production as well as Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and others. Be sure, in buying eggs of any of these breeds, that they come from high producing stock and from reliable dealers.

Fattening Ration

A useful fattening ration recommended by the Purdue station consists of 20 pounds of yellow cornmeal, 10 pounds of ground oats and 10 pounds of flour middlings, mixed with 80 pounds of buttermilk or skim milk. The mixture is allowed to stand 24 hours before using, the feed supply being prepared a day ahead of time throughout the fattening period. The poultry is confined in crates and given as much twice each day as the birds will clean up in about half an hour.

Alfalfa for Eggs

Leafy alfalfa hay makes an excellent substitute for grass and other green poultry feeds during cold winter weather. Laying hens need some sort of green stuff in the ration, poultry men find, and alfalfa is the most practical succulent feed. Hay may be self-fed to hens in racks made of poultry netting, or it can be drenched in boiling water and fed hot. If it is chopped or ground before feeding there will be less waste and the hens will eat much more.

Getting Our Money's Worth

The debt we pay most reluctantly—is taxes.

Yet taxes take a very small portion of the annual income, and give us the greatest return on any dollar spent.

Properly assessed taxes represent the only equitable means of raising federal, state and local revenue for the carrying on of government, education and public safety and health.

Good citizens are good taxpayers. The tax evader is not only a poor citizen—he is a barnacle on society, taking the privileges and protection that is being financed by others.

Because of the magic of cooperative action our tax dollar goes further than any spent by us as individuals, and gives us a genuine proprietorship in our community. We may point out good roads, parks and public buildings with pardonable pride when our dollars have helped build them. Taxpayers leave the world a better place than they found it.

Most communities need more money for the common welfare. Taxes work miracles in the community. Of the hundreds of items which go to make up the average community more are dependent on tax money for support than all other sources together.

Prominents and Bunk

IT is reported that Babe Ruth draws down $25,000 a year from his newspaper contracts calling for daily comment on the great game, while the bright reporter who writes the "comment" gets $75.00 a week. It is a form of camouflage very prevalent in this country. Henry Ford enjoys very lucrative retainers from several magazines for his outgivings, which, it is stated, are written and digested by a scholarly writer on Mr. Ford's payroll. The world is eager to pay its money for reputation and prestige and appears to enjoy being "bunked."

A Payroll Newspaper

WHEN it comes to developing the industrial prosperity of the country the spirit of a local newspaper is part of the efficiency of the nation. Working to secure industries and payrolls for the home community, and making a town known as a payroll center identifies a newspaper with the most constructive line of progress, that touches the hopes and lives of more people and families than any other one single idea on development. It is of far more importance than most forms of political agitation. Industrialism and prosperity make happy homes and law abiding citizens and taxpayers.—The Manufacturer.

Efficiency in Law

THE Old Bailey in London is the most famous criminal court in the world. And in the opinion of James M. Hepbron who writes on it in the Baltimore Sun, it is likewise the most efficient.

There are many things in the letter of English law that would not appeal to liberty-loving Americans. But in its administration, and the swiftness with which justice is meted to offenders, it must enlist our admiration.

Pettyfogging technicalities, delays, tricks, mob-sentiment either for or against an accused, are not tolerated. Commonsense and wisdom dominate the entire proceedings, and decisions come quickly and fairly.

This country does not need more laws further restricting law-abiding citizens in the hope of preventing crime, because criminals obey no laws. We need less legislation, better enfrocement of existing laws, surer punishment and scientific study of conditions which produce crime and a program for correcting such conditions.

Meteors to Come

DR. OLIVER, of the University of Pennsylvania, says there will be aerial fireworks from now to the close of the year, the meteor swarms which come every thirty-three years being now due. For centuries they have furnished a shower like rain. They kissed the earth in 1899, but astronomers believe the earth is near enough to lodges of the swarm of shooting stars to make them plainly visible this time. They also believe that we may witness some time during this month, November, a shower of meteors that will almost turn night into day.

No Wisecracks, After All

A Chicago mail order firm, finding that there was a good deal of "traffic congestion" about the mirrors in its plant, discovered on investigation that the average girl employe spends no less than six minutes a day using powder, lipstick and rouge before the looking glass.

One's impulse, on hearing this, is to make some sort of wisecrack. But on second thought, perhaps no wisecrack is called for from any self-sufficient male. For, after all, the man who pokes fun at the flapper who hesitates in front of every mirror is usually the man who says, "Now Alice would be a doggone nice-lokking girl if she'd only primp up a little bit once in a while."

Bail Jumpers

NEWTON D. BAKER, member of the president's law enforcement commission and president of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice, suggested to the latter group the other day the wisdom of making bail bond jumping a felony.

Forfeiting bail bond has come to be a favorite sport of many individuals waiting trial. As in the case of perjury on the witness stand, however, nothing much seems to be done about it. Prosecutors and judges seem to be helpless to remedy the situation.

Court procedure would be greatly improved and justice more nearly attained if these two faults could be remedied.

He Bet His Life

HE was old. They found him dead in New York City.

The body was thin and wasted. There was no sign of disease. It looked more like starvation.

Then these facts came out: He had $7000. It was deposited in several banks to make sure that all of it would not be lost in case of a bank failure. He held certificates of deposit on which he received 4 per cent interest.

He had apparently tried to live on the interest. It was only $280 a year—$23.33 a month. Refusing to use any of his principal, he tried to do the impossible — and slowly starved to death.

He was a poor money-mad soul. We all get to thinking money first, the man after. We become idolaters, with gold as our idol.

We all forget that the biggest thing on earth is a human being. We bet our lives against money. The old man did—and lost.

Goodwill

WE cannot have international good will until we have national good-will. We can not have national good will until we have community good-will, and we can not have community good will until we have business good will.

There is an item of good will in each transaction between employer and employee, between buyer and seller and between competitors, whether we realize it or not. There may be, by the same token, the item of ill-will. Ill-will is not constructive and pays no dividends. Good-will does.

How many of us, realizing the homeliness of this argument, strive in our every business transaction to put in our measure of good-will.

Now read the heading of this editorial again and reason out with yourself what "Peace on Earth" would mean to us business men, in the light of this argument.

Don't abandon the thought as idealistic or impractical. It is logical and the heading is a divine axiom.

Fish and Game Notes

By J. H. NEUSTADT

During the last legislative session in Sacramento, no fish or game bill caused such acrimonious discussion as the Duck Bill, proposing to reduce limits from 25 to 15.

Few people realize the value of our game ducks and geese. Authorities estimate these birds at not less than 75 to 100 millions and in terms of actual meat value, this represents approximately 150 million dollars.

Consider that almost directly depending on this immense reserve of wild life is the gun and ammunition industry of about 45 million dollars annually, together with the other commercial enterprises having to do with hunting, and obtain an idea of what conservation means.

To complete the picture, add the enormous recreational value to betwen one and two million duck hunters and their expenditures in the line of this sport and then visualize what wild ducks and geese represent in value to the United States.

The quantity of one hundred million birds sounds big, but consider it represents only one for each person in this big United States and the absolute necessity of conserving the breeding stock we have left.

The common house cat, in most cases, is a persistent bird hunter, recognizinz no "closed" season and taking a tremendous toll of song and insectivorous birds as well as a few game birds every season.

Sneaking cats which have a craving for bird luncheons are going to have trouble in Riverside, a Chicago suburb. Taking a cue from fableland, Riverside passed an ordinance twelve years ago requiring that tabby always wear a bell around its neck. This year, say the city council members, that ordinance is going to be enforced.

Either puss will tinkle a warning to feathered songsters or the cat will be impounded and if not claimed within five days, his nine lives are to be snuffed out in one stroke.

The last California legislature passed a law classifying domestic cats as predatory animals when found within the limits of any game refuge.

High Schools May Train in Aviation

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 28—(UP)—Sequoia Union high school may offer a course in airplane transportation next year if it so desires, according to Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction.

This course, unique in high school education in the United States, was developed and outlined by Earl W. Hill, professor of traffic and transportation in the College of Commerce of the University of Southern California. It has been adopted for use in California high schools by the California State Advisory Committee on Aeronautical Education. The State Curriculum Committee has designated the course under the phase of social science.

Professor Hill is co-author of the textbook to be used. It, is otherwise the work of Adam E. Diehl, graduate student of U. S. C. last year, now teaching in a Los Angeles junior college. It is entitled Aeroplane Transportation.

The course isn't designed to make an aviator out of a high school student over night, according to Professor Hill. It aims to lead to a better understanding of the industry's problems. There will be a brief treatment of such phases of aviation as history, commercial application, types of planes and motors, operation, air mail, meteorology, air law, and government regulation. Actual flying must await a more advanced course.

"High school students electing to take this course will devote 30 per cent of their class time to a question and answer discussion of the text," said Professor Hill. "Another 30 per cent wil be given to class discussion, 20 per cent to lecture by instructors, 10 per cent to lectures by outside speakers, active and successful in the field of aeronautics, and 10 per cent to field trips.

"Each students will be required to choose some phase of aviation as a topic for a term report. Projects will include such tests as drawing a detailed plan of an airport, charting airways, charting weather conditions, and dissertations on fixing rates, passenger express, and mail service.

"The subject of aviation will be closely linked with almost every other course in the high school—history, geography, manual training, mechanical arts, civics, mathematics, economics, accounting, salesmanship, etc. In the opinion of the state advisory committee its status should be that of a general elective."

MUMMERY

By BETTY HANSEN

We have been asked by the editor of this column to contribute some criticism or comment on things theatrical. Knowing nothing about the subject, we ventured to deplore our lack of qualifications for the task.

"Oh that's alright," said the editor, "I have to fill up the column with something."

"But what shall we write about?" we countered brightly.

"About two typed pages will be enough for you," he answered smilingly.

"Yes, but will your public stand for it?" we remonstrated.

"It will have to," was the quick come-back.

There being no argument for that, we considered ourselves elected.

To start this article off on the same high intellectual plane maintained in the rest of the paper, we really should say something about Shakespeare. No real critic of the drama (long A, please) can long refrain from mentioning the noble bard.

Apropos of this we are reminded of a bit of subtle criticism made a few years ago by the critic of a small mid-western journel. Said friend critic: "There has long been controversy as to whether Shakespeare or Bacon wrote the plays. After witnessing the performance of Hamlet last night in the Opera House, I submit that this article can now be settled. Open the graves of the two men. The one who turned over last night wrote the play."

We do not know the name of the author of this mot, but we do know that this is criticism brought to the highest degree of perfection.

It is perhaps not generally known that Eugene Field, long before he wrote those poems on which his fame rests, was dramatic critic of the Denver Tribune.

Field was another who was famous for saying in a few words all that was necessary about a play or its performance.

One of his classics was inspired upon the occasion of the appearance in his town of the late Preston Clarke with a repertore of Shakespeare plays. Clarke's chief claim to fame was that he was a nephew of Edwin Booth. That this was hardly sufficient justification for Clarke to attempt to play King Lear was maintained by Field. At any rate his resentment took the form of this brief but illuminating notice in the next day's paper.

"Last night Preston Clarke played King Lear at the Tabor Grand. All during the five acts of that immortal tragedy he played the king as though in constant apprehension that someone else was about to play the ace."

With that masterpiece we close our dissertation.

We cheerfully admit that this piece is not worth much. But we feel that it is worth exactly what the editor paid us for it.

Herrick Home Sold At Public Auction

The beautiful Lester Herrick home at Atherton was sold at public auction in front of the county courthouse in this city Saturday morning. The purchaser, as announced by Attorney John F Leicester of San Francisco, one of the trustees under a deed executed in March, 1923, was L. S. Rosener of San Francisco, whose bid was $43,500.

Sale of the home was ordered when Eleanor Herrick and her husband, Lester Herrick, defaulted on payment of the promissory note on which the deed of trust was given.

The Herrick home is situated in Valparaiso Park. The purchaser plans to reside there.

Jury Denies Damage For Auto Accident

A jury in the court of Judge Geo. H. Buck on Tuesday brought in a verdict for the defendants in a suit brought by Mrs. Alice Preston against the Pickwick Stage Company, Edward Stillman, M. E. Ryan and R. E. O'Connell. The suit was brought to recover money for injuries which Mrs. Preston alleged she received in an automobile accident near Belmont last year.

Mrs. Preston alleged that she was a passenger on the Pickwick stage enroute to Oakland. Near Santa Barbara the stage broke down and she was offered a ride to Oakland by Stillman. Near Belmont Stillman's machine and one driven by O'Connel and belonging to M. E. Ryan, of this city and collided.

THANK YOU, MR. WALTER

Gentlemen:

It was quite a nice thing to read of the consolidation of the two papers, and I thing it will make both of them into one strong paper, and much better for us advertisers, I am sure. One of the interesting features in the Times-Gazette has been the publication of happenings twenty-five years ago, and while that is extremely interesting, many of the stories consist of only one or two lines and it is not possible to give enough of the very eventful history of San Mateo county, and I as a reader trust that you will increase the space, and will add that I sometimes read the Sacramento Bee and sometimes the San Jose Mercury, and those two papers publish three different dates, each issue, fifteen, twenty-five and fifty years ago, and the second paper twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five years, and we have always enjoyed the comment on Menlo Park, Atherton and Woodside, so we still wish you greater success for the next hundred years.

Yours very truly,

Scottish Rite Masons (Kadosh and Consistory) members in San Mateo county are cordially invited to attend the presentation of the great Masonic Play, entitled "The Traitor" by the degree team of the San Francisco Bodies, at the Burlingame Masonic Temple Monday evening next, November 4, at 8 o'clock.

Odd decorations are to be the feature of the senior dance, which will be given Saturday night in the girls' gymnasium. Student body cards or special passes, together with the regular admission price, will be necessary to gain entrance to the affair.

What Is "Real Value"?

There can, of course, be many answers to this question but one thing is certain — it is more than just "cheap prices." Our definition of "real value" is "foods of absolutely dependable quality, sold in clean, sanitary stores by well trained, courteous salesmen, at a price from which all possible waste has been eliminated." Judging by the almost phenomenal increase in the popularity of Safeway Stores, each year, it would seem that the consuming public agrees with our definition.

Woman's Club Holds Hallowe'en Dance

A Hallowe'en social dance given by the Redwood City Woman's club Saturday evening was enjoyed by a hundred participants, all of whom were in fancy costume, many of which were gorgeous. It was said that the dance was one of the prettiest affairs in the history of the club.

The judges were Max Bartell, R. B. Morris and Mr. Maynard. Those receiving prizes were Mrs. Perkins for most original ladies costume; Miss Florence Toule, for best sustained character. Of the gentlemen, J. O. Wallace received the prize for the most original costume, and George Rousell for the best sustained character.

The hall of the Woman's Club was prettily decorated in Hallowe'en style. Refreshments were served during the evening. The grand march was led by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Layng.

One of the features of the evening was the punch bowl, which was presided over by Mrs. E. J. Hartney in a gay colored Gypsy costume.

Music for the evening was furnished by Lamb's orchestra. The piano was loaned for the occasion by the Whiting Music Co.

Lions Club Host To Football Team

Members of the Sequoia Union High School football team were guests Tuesday evening of the Redwood City Lions Club at the club's regular meeting at the Casino at Emerald Lake. In addition to the boys, the club had as its guests, Frank Griffin, director of athletics, and Raymon Dimick and Leonard Casanova, athletic coaches. A. C. Argo, principal of the high school, was the speaker of the evening.

Principal Argo spoke upon the relation of the school to the community, and Charles Clancy, captain of the football squad, addressed the Lions upon the game with San Jose which will take place tomorrow. He predicted that the local school will win if the same style of playing is shown as was displayed in the game with San Mateo, when the latter team was held to a scoreless tie.

Las Lomitas P.-T. A. will meet at the school house at 3 p. m., Friday, Nov. 1. Miss Sara Burns, librarian at Sequoia High School, will speak. There will be a whist party at the school house under the auspices of the P.-T. A. Friday, November 8, at 8 p. m. Admission 25 cents.

Burlingame Man To Face Check Charge

A Burlingame man, J. Hazelton Barter, known in Burlingame as Haze Barter, faces a charge of issuing fictitious checks in the Oakland Superior court. Barter is alleged to have obtained $6000 on false checks issued on the Oakland branch of the Bank of Italy.

Barter, who is said to have formerly been a bank official, used his knowledge of banking methods and his acquaintance among bankers to secure payment of the checks. He has been conducting a radio business in Burlingame.

The Redwood Social and Development Club will hold a Hallowe'en dance next Saturday evening. Dancing will start at 8 o'clock, and at midnight masks will be removed. The admission is 25 cents.

White Collars

A CRITICISM

By JAMES SANDOE

In a week or so the junior class of the Sequoia Union High School will present "White Collars," a very clever satiric comedy concerning the great middle class which wears white collars and which has a huge pride, though for what reason we have yet to discover.

Probably about six hundred Redwood Cityites will attend the performance. They will see the play as a matter of course. For several years they have attended all school performances because John or Mary was a students or because Peter carried in a glass of water at the critical moment in the play.

When the final curtain falls each actor will be surrounded by admiring relatives and friends who'd "just love to put on a play," and will be subjected to a silly fire of such choice adjectives as "cute," "simply darling," and "keen."

Then three hundred mamas, three hundred papas, and various nondescript sisters and brothers will be trotted home to bed and will completely forget the play.

Rather amusing and hopeless since most of the plays are rather good for a high school, and an impossible amount of work is spe... for the aforementioned... dozing mamas, papas, ... children, a play wr... more enlightening ... "keen" or "cute."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS FINDS BANK COVERING THOUSAND MILE EMPIRE

The Bank of Italy is to celebrate its Twenty-fifth Anniversary on October Seventeen. The two buildings pictured above are its outposts, north and south. Between them lies a great, rich empire a thousand miles long, as the train speeds and the highways wind. Within that thousand mile expanse, California banking customers have, in a quarter of a century, built up the biggest branch banking system in the United States.

BACK in October, 1904, there was rooted in the fallow financial soil of California, an institution that in twenty-five years' time was to expand until it covered a thousand miles of territory and built up resources of approximately a billion dollars. That institution is the Bank of Italy.

On October 17, of this year, it is to observe its twenty-fifth anniversary, or Silver Jubilee, with fitting ceremony. In each branch in that thousand-mile expanse, there will be a reminder of some sort that a quarter of a century ago, the greatest branch banking system in the United States came into being to insure the prosperity and the financial security of hundreds of thousands of customers in California and elsewhere—the greatest customer list of any bank in the country.

Between the outposts of the Bank of Italy system are a thousand miles of fruitful plains, great mountain ranges that lose themselves in the distant blue horizons and vast sweeps of sand filled terrain. The modern and comfortable bank buildings that mark those outposts are situated, respectively, at Crescent City, Del Norte County, and Chula Vista, San Diego County. In between are the two largest cities on the Pacific Coast and an industrial and agrarian empire as rich as any other in the world.

Tremendous Sweep

In between are something like ten degrees of longitude, or the distance between the thirty-second and the forty-second parallels. That longitudinal sweep includes much of the transitional area dividing the sub-tropical and the north temperate zones. Within the area the economic, agrarian and climatic contrasts are equally marked. For instance, in the northernmost extremity, agriculture, horticulture and industry takes into account the periodically heavy rains that sweep in from the Arctic Aleutians, while in the southernmost extremity the products, industrial and otherwise are of the sort that profit by almost continuous sunshine. In short, in the 30,000,000 acres under cultivation in the state, there are grown virtually all of the products known to the two zones heretofore mentioned.

As another evidence of the size to which the Bank of Italy system has grown through the grace of its superb management and the unfailing faith of its great host of customers, no other country in the world can boast such an extensive and expansive system, geographically speaking, excepting Canada and Australia. If the California system, which has been developed to its present size in a short twenty-five years, could be transported intact to the Continent, one tip might rest in London and the other in Florence, Italy. Otherwise placed it might reach from the Orkney Islands, which mark the northernmost extremity of the British Isles to Berlin, or it would cover the distance between Berlin and Rome.

In the first twenty-five years of its life, the Bank of Italy has built up a system whose present expanse could not be accommodated in any single European Country with the exception of Sweden and Russia in Europe. Nor could it be accommodated in any state of the United States outside of California, not even excepting Texas.

Reasons For Growth

Using Crescent City as a pivot the Chula Vista extremity, if swung around in a half circle, would pass over the plateau states and over Laramie, Wyoming, and Butte Montana, and would rest at a point several miles north of Vancouver B. C. If one extremity were pivoted in San Francisco, the other might be swung around to touch Idaho Falls, Idaho, or Spokane Washington. The system would extend from Los Angeles to Santa Fe, New Mexico.

If extended due east from Crescent City, the system would reach completely through three states and well into a fourth. If, by any chance, it were to locate intact in both the United States and Canada, the farthest north branch could be placed in Toronto and the farthest south branch in Atlanta.

Through the banking system, the widely different natural and economic factors found within its thousand mile expanse and its two longitudinal zones, are enabled to lend each other their own excess strength as represented by money resources, to make up for possible lack of such strength anywhere in the area. The system extends through a great cotton belt, a great citrus belt and a great deciduous belt, each of which need a particular type of financing to insure satisfactory production.

The Bank of Italy will have many reasons to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary on the seventeenth day of next October. But easily one of the biggest reasons is that, in its twenty-five years of life thus far, it has made the whole rich state of California tributary to Crescent City and to Chula Vista and to every branch bank city and district in between. A thousand miles of agricultural, horticultural and industrial empire serves these two outposts as well as it serves the great metropolitan centers within its boundaries.

Sally Belle McPherson Answers Last Summons

After a long illness Mrs. Sally Belle Saul McPherson, wife of Charles McPherson, pased away last Friday at her home on Alejandro avenue, surrounded by her loved ones. The deceased was born in Kansas City, Missouri, but as a child came to California to reside at Petaluma, where her father, Dr. Saul was a dentist for many years. Mrs. McPherson was a highly intellectual woman, possessed of many fine traits of character that made her many friends. She was a graduate of Miss West's exclusive school for girls. Her husband is a Spanish-American war veteran and a widely known undertaker. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, George S. and Donald McPherson. Mrs. McPherson was a splendid woman beloved and liked by all who knew her, and her death brings sadness not only to her family, but also to a large circle of admiring friends. The remains of the good and noble woman were laid to rest in Alta Mesa cemetery on Tuesday.

Frank R. Cain Returns From Los Angeles

When Stocks Fall?

The recent drop in stocks has caused capitalists to seek real estate investments in Menlo Park and the peninsula. Some of the choice corners in town are being sought at fancy prices. Hold on you property owners for the next year is to be the banner season for high figures in real estate. The completion of the Bayshore highway and the commencement of the Western Pacific Railroad from Ravenswood to San Francisco are sure to inflate prices.

Saturday Congestion Demonstrated Ned of Bayshore Highway

The congestion on the highway last Saturday only too clearly demonstrated the great need of completing the proposed Bayshore road from San Mateo to San Jose. It should have been finished a long time ago. The money to do the work is available. Why not go on with the improvement?

Are We Due For A Good Wetting?

From all indications it would seem that the peninsula is in for a good wetting this winter. The Indian signs are numerous and the old setlers find all indications pointing to a heavy down pour this winter. A student of California history finds that rain comes in cycles, as it did in the days of the padres, when the missions would be without rain for years at a time and then wet winters would follow inundating the mission lands. Following this data it is figured mathematically that this year is the beginning of the rainy cycle. Farmers look out for this prediction and have everything in readiness for the coming heavy winter rain.

Refrigerator Care Is Important All During the Year

Of all the things that go to make a successful Hallowe'en party there is none more important than ice, according to Dr. Martha Manning, home refrigeration expert.

"Its gay sparkle and merry tinkle add life to the most festive gathering, states Dr. Manning. "And then, —what would cider be without ice—bobbing up and down—cooling its delicious amber depths!

"Whether a dinner or just light refreshments are served, ice is indispensable in keping food and liquids sweet and flavorful. And what it adds in attractiveness to the table, every popular hostess knows."

So important does the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, consider year-'round refrigeration that it has just issued several instructional charts to the public, according to the National Association of Ice Industries.

"Use enough ice" is the caption of one chart, which illustrates temperatures obtained in different parts of a refrigerator with eighty pounds of ice, fifty and twenty pounds. On the chart is the wording: "Do not let the ice get below the danger line. A well-filled ice chamber means lower temperatures."

Another chart illustrates the effect upon ice-box temperatures of the pernicious habit of wrapping ice. Here is the text: "Wrapping may save ice (a cent a day), but it does not save food. Unwrapped ice melts slightly faster, therefore gives lower temperatures and furnishes surfaces for condensation of odors."

A third chart is headed: "Be sure milk and meat are placed in coldest section. This will vary with design of box." The chart is illustrated to show the coldest part—one box with ice compartment at top, another with ice compartment at side with baffle, and a third without baffle. In each case the coldest section is shown to be directly below the ice. The chart further advises: "Test your own box. Difference in design may change location of cold portion."

"Care of meat in the home" is the title of the fourth chart, which is illustrated. "Unwrap as soon as delivered," the chart reads. "Place uncooked meat in uncovered dish. Cover loosely, if at all. Cooked meat can best be stored by loosely coovering with oiled paper so as to prevent too rapid drying out. Store uncooked meat in cold portion."

The fifth chart graphically illustrates the growth of bacteria in milk held at different temperatures from twenty-four to ninety-six hours.

County Stands 28th in Taxes

By ELWOOD SQUIRES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 28—(UP)—San Mateo county, with a total property wealth of $68,341,403 stood twenty eighth among the counties of California this year, with its tax rate of $2.49 per $1000 on property inside of incorporated cities and $2.89 outside.

State Controller Ray Riley today announced these figures in his annual report on value of property in the counties of California.

This county, with a total of 299,030 acres of assessed land, showed the following property valuations, according to the report:

Real Estate, $24,714,185.

Improvements on real estate, $19,-160,620.

Personal property, $3,098,085.

Total county indebtedness, $938,-265.

Kern county held the distinction of having the lowest tax rate for county purposes of any county in the state, Riley's report said.

This was $1.30 on inside property and $1.50 on property outside municipalities.

The Kern county rate is largely due to the rich oil fields there, which provide enough money from taxes on owners of the fields so that the property rate may be lowered.

Trinity county has the highest tax rates of any county. The inside rate is not given in the report, as in the smaller counties it is said to be impossible to determine a fair rate on the few returns made.

The outside rate in Trinity county is $4.00.

California's total property wealth has now reached the nine billion mark—the exact total of all property in the state, including real estate, improvements, personal property, money and solvent credits being $9,-561,117,856.

A total indebtedness of $147,613,-331 faces the counties of the state. This is a gain of more than $6,000,-000 over the 1928 figures compiled by Riley.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 28—(UP)—Real estate men are not liars!

This fact was brought forcibly to attenton of a local stock company manager when he was asked to change a line in a play being produced here.

One of the characters quotes the line line "I had to lie like a real estate salesman."

Chief deputy real estate commissioner T. A. Kelly wrote to the manager as follows:

"I wonder if that line could not be changed. It has been the earnest endeavor of this department to professionalize the real estate business and I am happy to say there is little lying brought to our attention."

A GOOD ICE BOX GIVES A TEMPERATURE OF LESS THAN 50°

and SOMETHING MORE

A Gentle Whirlwind

A good ice box well served with ice gives amply low temperatures for safe food-preservation—AND something more.

Your ice box contains a gentle whirlwind—a constant current of air that, washed and freshened by passing over the ice, circulates throughout the food compartments. It carries odors and impurities away and leaves intact the natural freshness and flavor of the foods.

No other form of refrigeration can do this—so why buy an expensive substitute for ice that fails in this vital essential of good refrigeration?

*THE THERMOMETER TEST: Your ice company will test your ice box with an accurate thermometer—will make minor adjustments and repairs without charge.

Or will sell you one of the handsome and efficient new ice boxes at half old time prices and on easy terms.

For Baby

New York.—There are, even in this day of fabulous royalties and sales of motion picture rights, writers who are not wealthy. Of several such that I know, one recently became a father and all his friends showered the young son with gifts—appropriate clothing, silver spoons, mugs and what-not.

"But the best present of all," the writer told me, "is one good old George X sent. George gave my young hopeful two $20 gold pieces, and my wife and I have been instructed not to start the child's bank account with them. Instead, we must, each morning, hold the coins close to the baby's eyes and clink them together.

"As he grows up he will realize what real money is, and he will be trained to grab for it whenever he sees it."

Sensitive Fellow

Here is a story they are telling about Jimmie Durante, comedian. Durante, who used to play the piano for a singing waiter named Eddie Cantor, is known far and wide as Schnozzle, because of his de Bergerac nose. He is, perhaps, sensitive. At any rate, rather than have people laugh at him, he expends tons of energy in making them laugh with him.

He was playing golf one day, out on Long Island. Part of the course lay alongside a railroad track, near a station. A crowded passenger train had pulled in, just as Durante was getting ready for a tee shot.

Decidedly nervous, Durante was the last of a foursome to drive. He took a terrific swing, and missed the ball entirely. Without a word he started down the fairway.

His companions called to him:

"Hey, you missed the ball!"

Durante gestured for them to pipe down:

"I know it," he said, guardedly, "but look at all of those people in the train watching me. They don't know it."

Detective Story

A colored man walked into a pawn shop with a $250 camera. The pawn broker was suspicious and questioned the man regarding where he got such an expensive instrument. The colored gentleman thereupon departed hastily, not even troubling to take the camera, and not getting a ticket for it, either. The pawnbroker turned the camera over to police, who found a roll of film in it. This they had developed and prints made from it. The pictures were scenes aboard a yacht and at obviously expensive beaches. "Aha!" said the detectives, "A rich man owns this camera." One snapshot showed a close-up of a man in yachting costume, and a detective recognized the subject. It was Edmund O'Brien, an actor and the son of a former Supreme court justice. Pursuing the picture clew still further, the detective learned that the camera had been stolen from O'Brien, who hadn't even bothered to notify the police.

Rust-Proof Steel Easy to Weld, Says Expert

Washington.—Rustproof steel is easily welded by the acetylene-oxygen process and is even more rustproof after welding than before, due to loss of carbon, silicon and manganese during melting. These findings by W. Hoffmann, German metallurgist, have just been announced by the national advisory committee for aeronautics here.

The physical characteristics of rust-proof-steel welds are better than those of soft-steel welds, but the hardness of the metal due to welding must be removed by heat treatment.

Tooth Aches, So This Hero Removes It With Revolver

Santander, Spain.—The most original method yet discovered for removing an aching tooth was employed recently by a laborer in the town of Astillero, who shot out the offending molar. Unable to stand the pain any longer, he placed the barrel of a revolver against the tooth and pulled the trigger. He said he was relieved immediately. The only trouble was that the bullet also penetrated his cheek.

The view from this village is said to be unequaled in the world, commanding the entire "Eternal City" and a magnificent stretch of the Campagna and the Appian way.

Build Longest Bridge to Carry Phone Cables

Out in Arizona the telephone company has constructed what is believed to be the longest suspension bridge of its kind in the world, across the Gila river, says the New England Utility News. It was necessary to erect two towers 100 feet high on each side of the river from which were suspended two cables supporting cross-arms carrying the open telephone wires of the toll circuits. The span between the towers is 2,370 feet and approximately 800 feet longer than the span between the towers of Brooklyn bridge.

This type of construction was necessary because, while the Gila river during a large part of the year is a very shallow stream, there are times when sudden floods turn it into a raging torrent which would make it inadvisable to cross the river by means of a submarine cable, such a cable necessitating a length of more than 1,800 feet, which is considered the extreme length that can be used without loading pots. If loading pots were placed within the stream area, much difficulty might be experienced at flood times.

Replenishing Park Streams

Fishing ought to get better in a few years, at least so far as the national parks are concerned. The Department of the Interior and the Department of Commerce have worked out an arrangement whereby an expert from the bureau of fisheries of the latter department will carry on extensive research and development work in the national parks, in order to replenish the fast diminishing stocks of fish. The expert will also seek to introduce new varieties of fish in various lakes and streams where the change will work for better sport in the future.—Washington Star.

"The farmer is maligned if he tries to get a good price for his crops, but the mouths that malign him feed off him.

"A preacher took a farmer to task for complaining.

"'Peleg, Peleg,' he said, 'remember that Providence cares for all of us. Why, Peleg, even the birds of the air are provided for.'

Castle's Fate a Problem

Can a castle under water be a land-mark, is a question puzzling Ayrshire people. YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.

Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All drugstores have it.

Small Girl Music Prodigy

Bexhill-on-Sea, England.—Life is becoming just one child "phenom" after another. Novels, poems, long stories, short stories, biographies, fake biographies and what not from, or alleged from, the hands and heads of child "phenoms," ranging from four to sixteen years, are being published every few days.

The latest child "phenom" strikes a new note, or a whole cord of them.

Her name is Ruth Gipps. She is eight years old, which is rather aged compared to most of the child prodigies who have broken into print, but she was making herself heard, literally and figuratively, when she was three years old and she demonstrated that she was a true child "phenom" when she submitted a story for publication at seven.

Having had her career as an author checked by a rejection slip, Ruth turned to music and is having a musical composition printed. It is a little piece in the thoroughly modern style called the Fairy Shoemaker, and she suggested the design for the cover.

Her publishers have a high opinion of the work which they accepted on its merit, and it was awarded second prize in the Brighton Music festival. All the other competitors were adults, and the judges were unaware that they were giving the prize to a child.

Ruth comes of a musical family. Her mother, who is Swiss by birth, and her mother's six brothers and sisters are all in the musical profession.

There is nothing of the "prodigy" about Ruth's temperament. When she was introduced to her publisher she was in a bathing costume, playing with a bucket and spade on the sands at Eastbourne.

New York Great Silver Center

New York.—The biggest store of pure silver in the United States lies under the pavement in Spruce street. Its repository is the vault, reaching out under the street, of a company which so dominates the world silver market that it is virtually a clearing house for the metal.

Bars and ingots of the treasure are constantly coming into the vault from the mines of the world, and as constantly being shipped away to mints and jewelry manufactories in the United States and Europe.

The business of getting the pure silver in and out of the vault is highly organized. Armored cars and caged wagons bring it in and carry it away. It is carried up and down between the sidewalk level and the steel vault in electric elevators, and armed attendants are always on guard. The trucks that carry the treasure back clear up to the elevator shaft so that the silver can be transferred with minimum exposure, and most passers-by do not even stop to watch the operation. At the docks the metal is handled under guard, and on ships and liners it is kept in specie rooms.

So efficiently is it transported that the insurance rate from New York to India is only 15 cents on $100 worth, and in 25 years not an ounce of silver has been stolen.

Is Handled "Naked."

The silver is handled "naked," with no covering around the bars. Handlers are careful not to rub them against each other and, although the metal in its pure state is comparatively soft, the loss from scratching in shipment averages but five ounces in every 8,335 pounds. Before the war London was the great silver bullion market. Now New York has usurped the place, principally because the use of silver has become so much more extensive here.

The phrase "born with a silver spoon in his mouth" hasn't much significance any more in this country, for almost every family has some silverware now, and since the war American industry has found many new commercial uses for silver. The laws require sterling silver to be 925-1000 pure. The silver in the Spruce street vaults runs higher than 999-1000 pure.

HE HAD A BOTTLE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

They were talking about England and what that small country has accomplished in power and influence.

"What one thing has helped more than anything else," one of the older men asked, "to put England where she is today?"

The boy to whom the question was put thought a little while seriously and then answered:

"Respect for law, I think."

He was quite right. No one who has kept his eyes open in London, for instance, can help but be impressed with the reverence of the Englishman for the law and for those who are delegated to enforce it. A policeman in America is often a joke and a byword. In England he is respected, loved almost, and his raised hand is the hand of God. He is the friend of children and of the crippled and the unfortunate; he is a haven of safety for strangers and his word puts an end to disturbances of every sort.

Three men were sitting in the observation car as I rode up to Minneapolis. They were beyond middle age; they were evidently experienced, and I gathered from their conversation that they were officials of the road. As we rode along they pointed out the one to the other, where changes should be made, where some subordinate had, perhaps, made errors in carrying out regulations. A fireman stoking an engine, as we halted at a division point, was wasting coal and breaking some regulation evidently, which had been laid down for his guidance. One of the men took the number of his engine, and I knew that some one would sooner or later hear about the dereliction. Law should be obeyed.

"What did you do with my overcoat?" he inquired of his companion.

"I have a bottle in the inside pocket and I shouldn't want it broken." He winked knowingly at the other man and whispered something interesting into his ear, and they went off together. I had seen him the night before sitting half drunk in the smoking room, mumbling incoherently, a glass of liquor in his hand too stupefied with drink to set the glass down or to finish its contents. No one better than he could realize the danger of one of his engineers or firemen or brakemen violating the prohibition law, but for him it was all right, the matter of a joke in fact. His attitude explains a lot of anomalies in American life. We do not respect law, though we expect the other man to do so. We want ourselves to cling to the forbidden bottle.

I talked to a young fellow a few days ago who had violated a well-known college regulation and had knowingly and intentionally done so.

"Well," he said, in extenuation of his dereliction, "every one violates law, some time. You do, don't you? I don't see why I should be better than the rest especially when the majority of the fellows get away with it."

He could not see the ill-logic of his argument. He simply wanted his bottle in spite of prohibition.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Freezing Points Vary

While water freezes, or the ice melts at 32 degrees Fahrenheit, some liquids have a different freezing point. Mercury freezes at 39 degrees below zero, alcohol at 202 below zero. Salt water freezes according to the amount of salt it contains, the mark for sea water freezing averages 28.5 degrees above. Alcohol supplants mercury in thermometers used in very cold countries.

Woman's Funny Bone

THE best joke I know is that woman has no sense of humor. If she hasn't, it's time congress passed another humorous amendment, but the fact of the matter is that woman can't see anything so very funny in life after she has looked at man.

A man is supposed to go to a show for the sake of having a good laugh, a woman with the idea of having a good cry. What could be fairer than that? But, still, woman has her funny bone even if it is not located in her head. If you'll wait a moment, I'll wise you up to the whole matter.

Men have wit, but women have the humor. And there's a big difference between the two, believe me. Wit separates people, and puts the laugh on some unfortunate. That's why men like wit. A man sits on his hat or puts his foot on a banana peel, the yellow peril of the sidewalk. Men think that's funny.

Now woman's sense of humor is that of the gleeful laugh which goes around the whole circle. All can giggle, and a good time be had by all. But such social laughter does not satisfy Mister Man's desire to cackle.

Men have their standardized jokes just as they have their staple styles. There's the mother-in-law wheeze, which is a confession that the man who thought he was marrying the girl was really wedding the whole works. That laugh is surely on him.

Or there is the time-honored joke about the henpecked husband. That kind of a comic is meant to console all the other roosters. They feel better when they realize that there are lots of men in the same boat.

The standardized joke about woman concerns the old maid. But her plight is not her fault. Then that sort of joke is pretty much out of date these days.

The reason why woman does not laugh so easily, or find amusement in man's jokes is that woman is not easily surprised. And surprise is the life of all laughing matter. Man is surprised when his hat blows. If it's the other man's hat, he laughs. The suddenness of the thing makes it funny.

But you can't surprise woman so easily. She's forewarned against about everything that's likely to turn up in human life. She's often pleased by what's amusing, but is not easily stung by what is new.

There's a lot of laughing matter in the world, and if men like it they are welcome to it. Anyhow, as far as we women are concerned, wit means laughter, and laughter wrinkles. It's the Sober Sue who has the smooth skin.

Vampires

THE real vampires of history have been men, like that German butcher who devoured a score of little boys. But the women of today are bent upon being mannish, so that they have taken the vampire business over into their own department. They have always been fairly good at it.

If you want to know what a vampire is, I'll tell you that it's a flirt with a vengeance. The average girl flirts idly and innocently just for the fun of the thing. What are her eyes for if not to roll around and wink?

But this girl's glances are not premeditated. They are only little winks with a hop on them. But the vamp uses the glance to snare the man and scorch his heart. Then she uses stuff to make her eyelashes black and her lips red. She thinks that man'll fall for her color-scheme.

The vamp realizes that the old way of getting is weak and out of date. She resorts to coquettishness with a kick in it. But for her, men might have kept up the old illusion that it's they who go out after women when of course it has been quite the other way.

When the vamp goes to work and puts on her war paint, she gives us dead away. For she lets man see that it's woman who is ever on the warpath for Mister Man or the Big Chief and his scalp.

Woman has always been led to believe that man was necessary to her welfare. Today, however, she's thinking that maybe she can look after herself and punch her own meal ticket.

Men are hard to get, anyhow, so the vamp goes out after 'em with a punch. It's getting harder and harder to make men see that we are desirable. To make man feel that woman is a good investment is like boosting real estate on Barren island.

The list of eligibles is as short as the list of income taxpayers. For the war cut down ever so many fine prospects, and men are always inclined to bachelordom anyhow.

The vamp thinks she knows the trick. She sees that femininity is a lost cause, so she goes out on the warpath. I'll admit that men are hard to grab, and many of 'em are no bargains either.

But I'll never be a vamp for the sake of getting even the prince of Wales. If I can't get 'em with talcum powder, I won't go after them with rouge.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Playing golf is an evidence that you make enough money to permit you to spare the time for it.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

This is one of a series of articles prepared by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and published weekly in this newspaper for the information of its readers on real estate matters.

When you enter a huge commercial building, traverse its spotless marble corridors, are speeded to your destination in a high powered elevator, and finally sit at a polished desk with your feet on a speckless carpet, do you ever wonder whence came all this efficiency?, asks the National Association of Real Estate Boards in its weekly story for the public.

When you clip the coupons on your real estate bonds, do you know there is a direct connection between the interest you pocket and hundreds of neatly typed rent bills that are delivered to hundreds of housewives on the first of the month?

Expertly operated skyscrapers and money-making flat buildings are usually the achievements of the property manager, a gentleman who has remained unsung when most of the epics have been written about business geniuses, says the real estate association.

The modern property manager who studies market reports might not like to be reminded that he evolved not so long ago from the janitor who studies the furnace fire, but the descent is indisputable.

He Originated In Rome

Moreover, it is possible to trace his origin back still further, points out the association, for the janitor himself descended from the doormen hired by the wealthy Romans around 200 B. C. who were called janitors from the Latin word "Janua" which means door.

Sixty years ago, when everyone lived in houses and when office buildings were small structures compared to the skyscrapers of today, owners of income property acted as their own landlords. Property management then considered mainly of collecting rents and this was usually done by personal calls.

But imagine the job of collecting the rentals in the 1,300,000 apartment units now in New York.

The first apartment building in New York appeared in 1870 and the world's first steel frame skyscraper was erected in Chicago in 1887, less than fifty years ago; and, with the pasing of the years, rent collecting became less important than rent forecasting in income producing properties.

Public Interest In Earnings

Cities expanded and income properties became larger and larger. Real estate bonds became popular about 1916 as a means of financing large units, and the public became directly interested in the earnings of office buildings, hotels, and flats. It became increasingly important that the right structure be erected on a particular site, that the rentals be carefully calculated, that a weather eye be kept on the possibility of districts changing, and that tenants be kept happy in office and home.

And it has become necessary, because of the staggering sums invested in commercial buildings, to ascertain also what the future of these structures may be so they will pay profits to their owners and co-investors over a period of years.

The individual owner of property, who generally is engaged in some other business anyway, the old time landlord, can no longer run such buildings in his spare time. It was necessary to create a new profession of men who had to train themselves scientifically to produce, and operate with profit, the massive structures that line our city streets.

Very often the property manager is called in at the inception of a commercial real estate enterprise, says the national association. "He" is quite likely to be an organization of many men trained for the various kinds of work this business entails. He advises on the type of building that will bring the greatest returns from a given site, calculates what the rentals per square foot of office space, the monthly figure per apartment, or the daily rent per hotel room should be. He must exercise the greatest care in all his calculations, for if he is hired to manage the building, the investors will look to him to collect these rents.

What Else He Must Know

The producing property manager must know a lot about traffic problems as they affect income properties, he must be up on zoning, and has his ear to the ground on the subject of airports. He must be able to buy soap and pails at an economical figure. He must command battalions of scrub-ladies and se that they whisk away every last one of yesterday's cigar butts. He must show inspiration in filling his buildings with tenants that stay into the second and third generation; he must be firm and effective in collecting rentals.

The property manager works entirely behind the scenes but his efforts show up in many a dividend, and the elevators could not run in the Woolworth tower if he was not on the job.

Dodsworth by Sinclair Lewis; Harcourt Brace, $2.50; 377 pages.

Sinclair Lewis has outdine himself. This by far surpasses any other of his novels that I have read. He has drawn a picture, a bit rothetic, of an American captain of industry who loves a flighty young wife whose motto seems to be not "a sweetheart in every port," but "a lover in every land."

Poor business-lake Sam stands it until—but there is the story. Do read it. One of the best books I've read in some time. And if Sam doesn't enlist your sympathy, certainly Fran won't. Perhaps even the last pages will leave a lump in your throat as they did in mine. Sounds foolish, but just get acquainted with Sam and Fran and you'll see.

And then the description of the adventures of this practical American business man in Europe. This is the humor and is not good but better. And after a year or so of it, the way he officially guides visiting American friends around is howling. Do read it!

"Skin for Skin" by Llewellyn Powys is the author's own reaction to life in a sanatorium. As literature it is a fine book as a scientific study of tuberculosis it does not rate, and as a study of the mental effect brought about by the disease it probably is not valuable. The reason is that Powys is a type, a literary type without a bit of the temperament or individuality lacking. Therefore he would not be the proper source from which to study anything scientific, if it was meant to apply to the masses. Who ever heard of a truly literary person who typified the mass? By all means this book should be read if only because it is so different.

Probably the two most unpopular men in the world today are H. L. Mencken, editor of the "Little Green Bible" and George Jean Nathan, his associate, whose play criticisms have appeared in "Judge" for some time.

Nathan, in "Materia Critica," carries out his reputation as a very superior disagreementist." The book considers various types of entertainment, certain actors and actresses, critics and their criticism, and some notes on the theatre in general.

Here are a few barbs of Nathan's wit: "It is frequently said that the American actor cannot play the role of a gentleman. It seems to me that the trouble is just as often on the other foot. The American playwright doesn't seem to be frequently gifted in writing the roles of gentlemen."

"A music show is an entertainment in which a performer, when he does not know what else to do, turns a somersault."

"At its practical best, "As You Like It," theatrically the flimsiest of Shakesspear's plays, is little better than the legs of its particular Rosalind."

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Moulton and the latter's mother of Stockton, were the wek-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Pipkin on Jefferson avenue. The two families attended the now memorable football game on Saturday between Stanford and the University of Southern California.

Glad men with half tomorrow off will be here selecting their suits and o'coats!

Tomorrow between noon and night this stock is going to prove itself to old customers and new comers.

It's going to show that it's capable of supplying every suit and o'coat need, meeting every style demand and value specification.

State Leads In Airfield Count

SACRAMENTO, CAL., October 30, (UP)—California, which is taking the lead over other states of the union in providing air legislation, may soon follow the federal government's recommendation of air marking its principal highways as a navigating aid to fliers, it appeared here today.

The standard to be recommended, according to information being studied by the State Department of Public Works, will consist of simple markings involving in each instance the official route number preceded by the letters "U. S." in case of federal highways. Wherever practicable, the symbols may be characters from 10 to 30 feet high, depending upon the width of the pavement.

The markings, the state was instructed, should read from west to east, or from south to north, depending upon the general direction of the highway, and should be placed at all intersections and at intervals on each route of not more than 20 miles.

It is expected that a legislative act putting such a plan into effect will be introduced at the 1931 California legislature.
